

SHOWHOUSE TOUR

Stephen Mooney Foyer

The foyer isn't just this home's entry, it also acts as an art gallery and an alternative dining area. "It's truly the spine of the first floor," says Stephen Mooney. Serving as the design's jumping-off point is the drapery fabric with aqua and silver undertones. The wall-to-wall sea-grass rug concealing polished marble floors instantly warms the room. A round antique rosewood table plays host to chilled champagne and decadent desserts. Overhead, a bell-jar lantern makes a clear statement.

Lisa Erdmann & Eden Tepper Study (top photo)

"It honors the striking style for which Palm Beach is known," says Lisa Erdmann of this chic space. Grass-cloth wallcovering injects a pop of pattern, as does the sofa's subtle trellis-print upholstery and the colorful dragon print on the draperies. Neutral linen and nailhead trim enhance the study's low ceiling, while a coffee table with a faux-snakeskin top anchors the sitting area. The tropical look of wood-and-cane chairs suits the room perfectly, and a herringbone-patterned sisal rug incorporates stylish texture underfoot.

Photos by: Robert Brantley